Customers play an important role in reducing packaging waste by following best practices such as minimizing unnecessary waste, reusing packaging when options are available, and properly separating packaging materials for collection and recycling. Customers should review and follow any labels, symbols, or instructions provided on the packaging or accompanying product documentation, including guidance for packaging that may contain hazardous materials. Packaging waste should not be discarded as litter or placed incorrectly in mixed municipal waste, as improper disposal can harm the environment, human health, and personal safety. Single-use packaging, particularly plastic carrier bags, can have negative environmental impacts and should be managed responsibly.
